As the coronavirus sweeps across the country, more hospitals are becoming ill and more people are testing positive for the virus, which has infected more than 56,000 Americans and killed more than 1,100 as of Tuesday. The state of Tennessee declared a public health emergency in a bid to mitigate the spread of the virus, as did numerous other states. Meanwhile, Nashville Mayor John Cooper announced Monday that all of the city's public schools would remain closed through April 19. Cooper said the move was meant to protect students' mental health. Chattanooga's school system is closing until Thursday as well. Cities are starting to take precautions to keep the spread of the coronavirus in check. But with such a vast area, Chattanooga and other cities cannot be spared from the spread of the virus. By tracking routes, pushing to get residents to follow social distancing rules, and using technology, Chattanooga is working to keep the virus from spreading. "In reality, we have to be vigilant," said Letcher. How do we know about the coronavirus? It was first reported to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in January, and the coronavirus was officially named the COVID-19 on Jan. 20. There is no vaccine for CO
